WHITE PLAINS YOUTH BUREAU IN PARTNERSHIP WITH NEW YORK POWER AUTHORITY
HOLDS 4TH ANNUAL STEAM AWARDS

White Plains, NY – June 12, 2019. The White Plains Youth Bureau in collaboration with the New York Power Authority, Inc. will hold its 4th Annual STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Math) Awards Recognition Program Thursday, June 13th, 6 to 9 p.m. in the Jaguar Room at New York Power Authority Headquarters, 123 Main Street, White Plains. The program will celebrate the contribution of White Plains School District Educators as outstanding teachers and for setting a standard of excellence inspiring youth to achieve high academic success. White Plains School District honorees are Jody Kennedy, Eastview School; Raquel Reale, Highlands Middle School and Jessica Jordan, White Plains High School.

The program will also honor Dr. Julia Anderson-Lee. Dr. Lee holds a Ph.D. in Math from Iowa State University. Dr. Lee is a native of White Plains and a former White Plains Youth Bureau participant and a graduate of White Plains High School. Dr. Lee is currently an engineer at the Boeing Company.

Youth honorees will include: Ashley Brown, Leadership Award; Marina Rosenthal and Jessica Osorio for Community Service Award and Angela Mathews for Creative.

Mayor Thomas Roach congratulates New York Power Authority for their investment in our White Plains youth providing opportunities, pathways, workshops and leadership to encourage youth to pursue their dreams.

Frank Williams, Jr. Director of the White Plains Youth said that the New York Power Authority is a great friend to our kids. Last year, NYPA put on a Women in STEM Conference for more than 60 White Plains youth. It is essential and critical that we prepare young people for careers in STEM at the earliest stages of their life.

The speaker for the Recognition Ceremony is Maribel-Cruz Brown, Manager of Key Accounts, Municipal and Cooperative Electric Systems.
